FLOOR DEBATE

March 28, 2002 LB 791

deck? Magicians. But they do it, and that's why you get 20 and the house turns up 21, and you get 17 and the house turns up 18. Every now and then somebody wins to keep the pump primed. You have to let the suckers think they can win. And Senator Janssen wants to rook the suckers. Senator Schrock wants to rook the suckers. And the other 18 want to rook the suckers, or else they don't understand gambling. If I set up a casino and I am not staying in business because I'm selling a product, how do I stay in business when it takes money for me to stay in business? You keep me in business by coming and giving me your money. You are never going to break the house. So what I trade in is your foolishness, your greed, your stupidity, your lack of understanding, and your desire to get something for nothing, which translates into sheer desperation, because after that poor woman that Senator Janssen told us comes into his store and starts out spending a dollar and losing four, what she will tell herself, well, although four dollars that were in my possession went back to the house, really I lost only one dollar, so I can afford to try it again...

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...because there's a chance I can win all over again. But this time she bets and she loses; she bets and she loses; she bets and she loses yet again. Then she says I'm so deep in the hole now, I've got to get out. And she'll start increasing the amount that she bets, hoping that one time I'm going to hit. Well, by the time she leaves, she's got nothing. And that's how people get caught up in gambling. It is very alluring. That's why they put these bright lights. That's why they sell you cheap food. They make a lot of noise and keep confusion and chaos so you will never begin to think with that part of your brain that requires an environment that is conducive to reflection. Keep it frenetic and keep you frenetic, and that's what happens. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR CUDABACK PRESIDING

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. You've heard the opening on the reconsideration motion. Senator Synowiecki, followed by Senator Landis and Chambers. Senator Synowiecki.
